Business Report

(From January 1, 2002 to December 31, 2002)

1. Business Review

(1) Process and Results of Business Operation

The environment surrounding Trend Micro Group during the term under review grew more and more severe in the situation of sluggish growth of information technology-related demand owing to the reduction of corporate investments in information systems, etc. in Japan, the United States and Europe, which led to the suppression of investment in the network security-related business which had been considered to have higher priority in the investments in information systems.

Nonetheless, the trend remains unchanged in which many corporations are in the process of continually expanding investments for the promotion of networked environment, reexamination of enterprise resource planning (ERP) system, etc., and the market is expected to stay firm in the medium- to long-term range even if there are short-term declines. Since a great number of viruses having been spreading damages in the last couple of years are extremely powerful with multiple infection routes, users are demanding more effective products and services from vendors of network security products.

The number of viruses reported to the Company in Japan was 52,172 in 2002 compared to 25,644 in 2001 and the virus infection reports are escalating.

In Japan, the sales of InterScan VirusWall, the antivirus product on internet gateway, accelerated in line with the increase of virus infection reports via e-mails and internet sites, accompanied by the improvement in sales of ServerProtect, a product for file servers, and Virus Buster Corporate Edition, a product for network PCs. With respect to the market for individual consumers, the sales of the Virus Buster series which rapidly grew at the end of the previous term continued to remain strong during the term under review, and the sales levels of the VirusWall E-Mail Service program that provides antivirus services in alliance with ISPs (Internet Service Providers) largely expanded.

In North America, the sales stayed modest due to the effect of the restraint on the investments in security by large-scale corporations dominating majority of the Company's customers in this region. However, the Company has been taking specific actions to boost sales in the coming terms, such as reinforcement of brand values through marketing campaigns and expansion of distribution channels for transitioning to indirect selling system.

Table of Contents

In Europe, the antivirus products for upper levels of network hierarchy such as the InterScan series and the ScanMail series continually expanded its sales mainly to large-scale corporate users during the term under review, and the sales of the ServerProtect and the OfficeScan (Virus Buster Corporate Edition) also expanded with the increase in the number of customers of med-sized companies. Although the shares in the sales in other areas such as Australia, China, Brazil and Mexico remain small in the total sales of Trend Micro Group, the sales in such areas are steadily increasing.

As a result of the foregoing, the sales for the term under review amounted to 27,797 million yen (50.6% increase from the previous term), the profits for the term under review amounted to 9,765 million yen (28.7% increase from the previous term), and the income for the term under review amounted to 5,812 million yen (1,378.5% increase from the previous term).

(2) Capital Expenditure

The total amount of capital expenditure for the term under review was 153 million yen which was invested mainly in development of new technologies and for instruments necessary to rationalize ERP.

(3) Financing

Company issued the ninth unsecured bonds (with subscription warrants) in an amount of 4,000 million yen with the payment date being April 18, 2002.

(4) Issues the Company must Address

Due to the deteriorated business confidence in North America and Europe and the stagnant economy in Japan, corporate investments in information systems are experiencing sluggish growth. The business environment surrounding the Company reflects such reduction in the investments in information systems which warrants no optimism.

However, as many corporations increase their reliance on networks including mail systems nowadays, the scale of opportunity loss is becoming overwhelmingly larger in the case of in-company system failure compared to that of several years ago. Consequently, network security measures such as antivirus measures are considered to further increase their importance in the future and we expect that its market scale would show steady expansion in the medium- to long-term range. In order to correspond to such market expansion, the Company and its overseas subsidiaries intend to recruit and secure qualified human resources for stronger management bases, promote brand values and expand distribution channels.

Table of Contents

The technical innovations in this industry is evolving so fast that in the internet environment of the next generation, for example, there are indications that further pervasion of open platforms such as broadband, mobile communication and Linux may bring about drastic changes to the present-day network environment. In order to maintain competitive advantage over powerful competitors in the United States, it is essential to respond timely to the changes in the external environment involving technical innovations.

The outbreak of the new type viruses such as NIMDA which emerged two years ago had an immense influence on the conception of antivirus measures. These viruses bearing compound infection routes not only expand damages in a short period of time with a strong infectious capacity but also repeat the infection as long as there remains at least one infected PC in the network, so that it is no longer sufficient to have conventional antivirus measures which scan and eliminate viruses upon receiving report on virus pattern files.

In order to protect the corporate information assets from the threat of such compound-type viruses, the Company launched TM EPS (Trend Micro Enterprise Protection Strategy) , an original new antivirus concept of the Company, which enables centralized control of a series of responses from the outbreak of viruses through their elimination, and minimization of infection damages and the cost of measures.

The products under TM EPS will also have new functions, one of which takes preventive actions against virus infection before a virus pattern pile is distributed and another of which prevents reinfection by promptly eliminating any remaining viruses by repeatedly scanning PCs on the network and servers. These functions enable corporate users to deal with new virus attacks more quickly and to reduce time for and cost of recovery from infection damages by simultaneously scanning and eliminating viruses on the network. In addition, functions of the products for integrated management of the Company's products on the network will be enhanced so that the network administrator can operate and manage these functions more effectively as well as simply.

The value of network environment and information assets of corporations are increasing their importance and at the same time, the threat of viruses is continuously changing at high speed. In such circumstances, the Company is determined to maintain its competitive advantage in the current market for corporations and to increase its share thereof by consistently developing new antivirus strategies and measures and providing products and services that meet the needs of users ahead of its competitors.

In addition, if the adjustment of number of shares becomes necessary in the event of merger or split-off of the Company, etc, then the Company may also adjust the number of the Option Shares.

In the event of stock split or consolidation, the Exercise Price shall be adjusted using the following formula and any fractions less than one (1) yen resulting from such adjustment shall be rounded up.

In the event of issuance of new shares or disposition of treasury stock at a price less than the market price (excluding the exercise of the Options, the subscription rights pursuant to the provision of Article 280-19 of the Commercial Code prior to the amendment on April 1, 2002 and the subscription rights in connection with the bonds with subscription rights pursuant to the provision of Article 341-8 thereof), then the Exercise Price shall be adjusted using the following formula and any fraction less than one (1) yen resulting from such adjustment shall be rounded up.

$$\text{Exercise Price after Adjustment} = \text{Exercise Price before Adjustment} \times \frac{\text{Number of Shares issued and outstanding} + \frac{\text{Number of Shares newly issued} \times \text{Subscription Price per share}}{\text{Share Price before new issue}}}{\text{Number of Shares issued and outstanding} + \text{Number of Shares newly issued}}$$

In the formula above, Number of Shares issued and outstanding shall mean the number calculated by the number of outstanding shares less the number of treasury stock held by the Company and in the event of the disposition of treasury stock, Number of Shares newly issued shall be read as Number of Treasury Stock disposed and Share Price before new issue shall be read as Share Price before disposition .

In addition, if the adjustment of number of shares becomes necessary in the event of merger or split-off of the Company, etc, then the Company may also adjust the Exercise Price.
