EMCOR GROUP, INC. ANNOUNCES ANTICIPATED RESULTS
FOR THE SECOND HALF OF 2003
- Updates 2003 Full-Year Guidance -

NORWALK, CONNECTICUT, October 2, 2003 - EMCOR Group, Inc. (NYSE: EME) today provided financial guidance for the second half of 2003 and updated its financial guidance for the 2003 full-year period.

Based on current market conditions, the Company expects revenue for the second half of 2003 to be between $2.25 billion and $2.35 billion, and diluted earnings per share to be between $0.90 and $1.01. The Company expects these results to be slightly weighted towards the 2003 fourth quarter. In light of these expectations, the Company's guidance for the 2003 full-year period is for revenue of between $4.4 billion and $4.6 billion, in line with previous estimates, and diluted earnings per share of between $1.65 and $1.75. Contract backlog at September 30th, 2003 is anticipated to be approximately $3.1 billion versus $2.9 billion as of 9/30/02 and 12/31/02. EMCOR expects to release its financial results for the third quarter of 2003 on October 23, 2003.

The Company's financial guidance reflects continued solid revenue growth as a result of its leading position in its markets, and profitable results from all the Company's North American operations. However, gross profits continue to be restrained by the high proportion of public sector work within backlog, continued recessionary conditions in most of EMCOR's markets, especially in the Midwestern and Northeastern U.S., and a reduced level of private sector, discretionary, small project work, which typically generates higher gross margins than longer-term work. EMCOR's expected results for the second half of 2003 also reflect the impact of the slower than anticipated return to profitability of the Company's U.K. subsidiary, due to reorganization charges at that subsidiary and to U.K. market conditions.

The Company continues to see good performance within its facilities services business, with strong contributions to revenue and operating income by recently-acquired Consolidated Engineering Services. EMCOR is committed to the growing market for outsourcing and facilities services, as evidenced by its separate announcement today of both an alliance with Siemens Building Technologies and an agreement to acquire Siemens' US Facilities Management Business.

The Company also continues to operate from a position of financial strength, with one of the strongest and most liquid balance sheets in its industry and reasonable levels of revolving debt. Based on strong cash flow from operations, EMCOR expects current debt to decline further by the end of the year.

Mr. Frank T. MacInnis, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of EMCOR Group, stated, "This continues to be a challenging time for EMCOR and its entire industry. While we have been able to maintain our dominant position in many of our markets, mainly through awards of public sector projects, the contracting environment remains recessionary, with many of our private sector clients waiting for clearer signs of a full-fledged economic recovery. In addition, the anticipated recovery in small-project discretionary spending has been slower and less profitable than anticipated. In the U.K., our new management team has taken steps to enhance profitability, and although we expect profitable performance from these operations in the second half of this year, before reorganization costs, current conditions in the U.K. market together with reorganization costs will prevent us from attaining our previously announced profitability goals for this business until 2004."

Mr. MacInnis continued, "Despite the difficult conditions currently faced by some of our operations, EMCOR continues to make progress towards its strategic goals. Our Consolidated Engineering Service business is performing well, and we continue to strengthen our ability to deliver facilities services on a national scale. We are particularly excited about the growth opportunities associated with the Siemens Building Technologies agreements which we announced today. EMCOR remains solidly profitable, with strong cash flow and the financial strength to execute its business strategy."

Mr. MacInnis added, "While we are obviously disappointed by the near-term outlook, we remain committed to our long-term diversity model that provides an array of services to a multitude of markets. Our broad skill sets and agility have been built into our business, resulting in high backlog levels with corresponding top-line revenue growth. The current market has given us an over-weighting of public sector work; however, when the economic recovery takes a firmer foothold, our backlog mix will naturally shift to a more optimal balance of public and private sector customers. This backlog rebalancing combined with our growing facilities services business should yield future profitability at or above historical levels."

Mr. MacInnis concluded, "EMCOR's 2004 budget process has just begun. Since this involves the accumulation of analyses and estimates from each of our more than 140 operating locations, it is too early to make detailed judgments about next year's prospects. However, based on our existing contract backlog, reports from subsidiary managers, and opportunities in our facilities service businesses, we look for "baseline" EBIT performance in 2004 at about 2% of revenues, with a significant likelihood of enhanced performance if private sector capital spending strengthens as predicted by many economists. The anticipated "baseline" level of performance would reflect EPS growth of at least 40% during 2004, over expected 2003 levels."
