The following is the transcript for a video message from Wisconsin Energy's Chairman and CEO, Gale E. Klappa, to the company's employees.

Good morning everyone. I wanted to spend some time with you because today is a big day for our company.

I'm pleased to share with you the exciting news that we've signed a definitive agreement calling for Wisconsin Energy to acquire Integrys Energy Group.

Now, Integrys is a strong diversified energy holding company based in Chicago. It has regulated natural gas and electric utility operations here in Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan and Minnesota. Integrys, of course, owns Wisconsin Public Service, our friend and neighbor in northeast and central Wisconsin.

So in about a year after all the necessary approvals are received the combined company will be called the WEC Energy Group. For now, all of the utilities, ours and theirs, and there are seven of them, will continue to operate just as they do today.

The new WEC Energy Group will serve more than 4.3 million natural gas and electric customers across Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan and Minnesota. We'll operate nearly 71,000 miles of electric distribution lines and more than 44,000 miles of gas transmission and distribution lines.

Our compatible operational philosophies and our commitment to reliability, to customer satisfaction, safety and environmental stewardship will serve us really well as we work together to become what I believe will be the premier regulated utility system in the Midwest.

I can assure you that this transaction checks all of our boxes when we've considered this type of venture. It should add to earnings per share in the first calendar year after closing, is largely credit neutral and should produce a growth rate that should be equal or greater than Wisconsin Energy's stand-alone growth rate.

WEC Energy Group will be headquartered in metro Milwaukee with operating headquarters in Chicago, Green Bay and here in Milwaukee. Upon completion of the transaction, I will become the chairman and CEO of the combined company and other senior leadership roles will be filled by current senior officers of Wisconsin Energy. We will honor, of course, all existing labor agreements and we will maintain historic levels of community involvement and charitable contributions. But as always, our primary focus will be safety, reliability, efficiency and service to our customers now and for years to come.

So you may be wondering, What does this mean for me, specifically? Well, for today and many months to come, most of us will see absolutely no change. We simply must continue to work with a laser focus on world-class reliability and delivering the very best customer care anywhere. And, I'll ask each of you this morning to re-double our efforts as the most reliable utility in America to provide exceptional value to our shareholders.

Now, I'm sure you're going to have a lot of questions and we hope to answer all of them over the days and weeks ahead. So be sure to watch iConnect and read the FAQs to learn more.

This announcement of course will generate a lot of attention, both in the energy trade press and the mainstream media and that's a good thing.

Combining Wisconsin Energy and Integrys will create a larger and more diverse company one with the operational expertise, the scale and the financial resources to meet this region's energy needs today and in the future and it creates a brand new Fortune 500 company to be headquartered in the state of Wisconsin.

We are well-poised for this exciting new chapter in our company's long, storied history and I know you're ready for the challenge. Together, we will build on both companies' expertise and take our operations and energy delivery programs to the next level.

So thanks for all you do today and through this transition to deliver the very best for our customers, shareholders and our communities. Have a good day, be safe and we'll talk soon.
