Item 8.01.

Other Events

On or about February 11, 2015, a purported stockholder of Hampden Bancorp, Inc. (the Company) filed a putative class action lawsuit in the Superior Court of Massachusetts for Hampden County against the Company, the Company's board of directors, and Berkshire Hills Bancorp, Inc. (Berkshire), captioned Brian Levy v. Hampden Bancorp, Inc. et al. The lawsuit alleges that the Company's directors breached their fiduciary duties to the Company's stockholders, and that Berkshire aided and abetted those breaches, by engaging in an allegedly unfair process leading to the Company's sale to Berkshire and by allegedly failing to maximize value for the Company's stockholders. The lawsuit also alleges that the Company's proxy statement contained material omissions. The lawsuit seeks, among other things, equitable relief enjoining the sale agreement.

The Company believes this complaint is baseless and without merit and intends to vigorously defend this action.
