guidance for 2006 excluding restructuring and other non-recurring costs, which is a non-GAAP measure. However, at this time the Company is unable to quantify the magnitude of such restructuring and other non-recurring costs in 2006 and, accordingly, is unable to reconcile such forward-looking information to GAAP measures without unreasonable effort. The Company uses the foregoing non-GAAP measures to evaluate and manage its operations internally. It also provides this information to assist investors in performing additional financial analysis that is consistent with financial models developed by research analysts who follow the Company.
