UNILEVER AWARDS HR OUTSOURCING CONTRACT TO ACCENTURE

Unilever today announced that it has awarded its global Human Resources outsourcing contract to Accenture. This follows the announcement in April of an outsourcing contract to Accenture for its European IT operation, and in December last year for its European financial transactional services to IBM.

The Human Resources contract sees Unilever outsourcing the transactional and administrative parts of the function globally. The contract covers transactional, administrative and HR IT systems support for activities such as recruitment and resourcing, reward, training, and performance management.

The outsourcing programme is part of the company's One Unilever initiatives to increase leverage of its scale, improve its marketplace competitiveness, deliver functional excellence, and create a more competitive cost-structure allowing it to focus on its consumers and customers.

Unilever intends to minimise the impact on people by transferring staff to Accenture, early retirement, exploring alternative roles, natural attrition and through voluntary programmes.

Unilever has a great deal of experience of managing change and, as well as dealing with people issues sensitively and professionally, it is committed to working closely with the relevant employee representatives and works councils.

Sandy Ogg, Unilever's chief HR officer, said: "This global outsourcing deal represents a major strategic choice for Unilever. We believe that it is best for our business if we concentrate on our core competencies and transfer what is our back office and make it into someone else's front office. We can also leverage Accenture's capabilities and expertise. This deal allows us to create a simpler, more agile Global HR function to better support Unilever's growth agenda."

John Zealley, managing partner of Accenture's European Consumer Goods & Services

Edgar Filing: UNILEVER N V - Form 6-K

Practice, said: "This agreement should help support Unilever as it strives to transform its business.

"By outsourcing functions such as human resources to Accenture, Unilever should benefit from increased efficiencies, decreased costs and greater global standardization."
