Effective June 21, 2007, the Board of Directors of The Boeing Company (Boeing or the Company), upon the recommendation of the Governance, Organization and Nominating Committee, elected retired Marine Corps General James L. Jones, former Supreme Allied Commander Europe, and Commander of the United States European Command, as a new director. General Jones has served as the President and Chief Executive Officer of the Institute for 21st Century Energy, an affiliate of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, since March 2007. He served as the Supreme Allied Commander Europe, and Commander of the United States European Command from January 2003 to February 2007. Previously, General Jones served as the 32nd Commandant of the United States Marine Corps from July 1999 to January 2003. General Jones will be proposed to shareholders at the 2008 Annual Meeting of Shareholders for election as a director. General Jones will serve on the Audit Committee and the Finance Committee. There was no arrangement or understanding between General Jones and any other persons pursuant to which General Jones was selected as a director, and there are no related person transactions between General Jones and the Company.

General Jones will receive the standard compensation provided to all Boeing nonemployee directors. This compensation consists of a cash retainer fee of $75,000 per year and a grant of retainer stock units equal in number to the number of shares of Boeing stock that could be purchased with an aggregate of $130,000 per year. The Company reimburses nonemployee directors for actual travel and out-of-pocket expenses incurred in connection with their services. The nonemployee director compensation program is described in further detail in the Company's proxy statement for its 2007 Annual Meeting filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission on March 23, 2007.
