Deferred income tax and social contribution arise from accumulated tax losses, social contribution negative base and from temporary additions to the taxable income. Tax credits resulting from accumulated deficit and social contribution negative basis were recorded based on the expectation of the generation of future taxable income observing legal limitations.

The fiscal credit arising from goodwill incorporated by the Company is being amortized on a straight-line basis in 60 months.

m) Employee profit sharing

The provision for employee profit sharing is monthly constituted based on Management's estimates, considering the targets established for the year, and recorded as payroll expenses.

n) Provision for contingencies

Provision for contingencies is constituted based on the opinions of legal consultants by amounts sufficient to cover losses and risks considered probable.

o) Use of estimates

The preparation of the financial statements in accordance with the accounting practices require that the Management makes estimates based on assumptions affecting the value of assets, liabilities, revenues and expenses and disclosures presented in the financial statements. The effective results may differ from these estimates.

p) Consolidation

The consolidation process of balance and result accounts adds up horizontally the balances of the accounts of assets, liabilities, revenues and expenses, according to their nature, supplemented by the elimination of the interests of the parent company in the capital, reserve and retained earnings of the subsidiaries. The exclusive funds recorded as short-term investments are consolidated.

q) Proposed profit allocation

The financial statements reflect the Board of Directors' proposal for the allocation of the net income for the year in the assumption of its approval by the Annual General Meeting.

r) Derivatives

In order to protect a part of the Company's exposure from variations of foreign exchange rates and from the increase in fuel prices, the Company uses oil and foreign exchange financial derivative instruments. Those instruments are mainly futures, options, collars and swaps.

As there is not a future market for aircraft fuel in Brazil, the Company uses international derivatives to manage its exposure to increases in fuel price. There is a high correlation between international oil prices and aircraft fuel in Brazil, making oil derivatives effective in the compensation of variations in aircraft fuel prices and serving as a short-term protection against strong increases in the average aircraft fuel price.

The Company measures the effectiveness of derivatives in relation to variations in the hedged assets prices. As most of the Company's fuel derivatives is not traded on stock exchanges, the Company estimates their fair values. The fair value of derivative instruments, depending on the type, is determined based on evaluation methods of present value and option appreciation models that use assumptions on the market price of commodities. Furthermore, as there is not a reliable futures market for aircraft fuel, Management estimates aircraft fuel future prices to measure the effectiveness of derivatives to offset variations in prices.

Aiming to record, demonstrate and disclose transactions with financial derivative instruments carried out by the Company and its subsidiaries, based on their formal risk management policies, the Company started, as of January 2005, to measure the effectiveness of financial derivative instruments used with the specific purpose of market risk coverage based on their fair values, and to recognize the non effective portion of realized results of the transactions with financial derivative instruments directly in the financial result for the year, as the effective portion of realized results is recognized by means of adjusting revenues and expenses related to the items, covered. Unrealized results or the variation of the market fair value are recognized in the shareholders' equity and recognized in the result at the settlement date of the contracts.

The accounting policy for effectiveness measurement of derivative instruments was defined based on the Company's risk management policy that considers effective instruments which offset between 80% and 125% of the change in the price of the item to which protection was contracted.

The market value of financial derivative instruments is calculated based on usual market practices, using closing amounts in the period and material underlying quotations, except for option contracts, whose values are determined by means of the adoption of a pricing methodology (Black & Scholes), and the variables and information related to volatility ratios are obtained by means of acknowledged market information providers.

s) Sale and leaseback transactions

The gains on sale-leaseback transactions are fully recognized, in the date of the transaction, as non-operational results.

t) Return conditions

The Company operates leased aircraft based on operating lease agreements. The lease agreements establish the conditions in which the aircraft will have to be returned at the end of the leasing period. Depending on the aircraft and its parts utilization and maintenance conditions, at the date of the end of the agreement, the Company may be asked to make additional payments to the lessor regarding such contractual obligations. The Company accrues those costs, if any, on the date the payments can be estimated as highly probable. Currently there is no accrual constituted for this purpose.

( a ) Labor and civil contingencies

The Company takes part in legal proceedings and civil and labor claims that arise in the ordinary course of business. Although the results of those proceedings cannot be forecasted, the final judgment of those actions will not have a relevant side effect in the Company's financial position, operating income and cash flow, according to management's opinion which is supported by its external legal advisors.

In order to demonstrate a better current estimate, the provisions constituted for probable losses are classified in non-current liabilities and are reviewed periodically based on the proceedings evolution and on the background of losses in favor of labor and civil claims.

( b ) Tax contingencies*( b1 ) PIS and COFINS

The Company is judicially discussing several aspects regarding the assessment and calculation basis of PIS and COFINS on its operations. Until 2006, the Company made judicial deposits in the amount of R$ 27,760 and the related provisions regarding legal obligations totaled R$ 22,423.

( b2 ) ICMS

The Company is questioning in court the non-assessment of VAT (ICMS) in aircraft and engine imports under operating leasing in transactions made with lessors headquartered in foreign countries. The Company's Management understands that these transactions are mere leases in view of the contractual obligation to return the object of the contract, which will never integrate the Company's assets. Given that there is no circulation of goods, the tax triggering event is not characterized.

17. Financial Derivative Instruments

The Company is exposed to several market risks arising from its operations. Such risks involve mainly the effects of changes in fuel price and foreign exchange rate risk, as its revenues are generated in reais and the Company has significant commitments in US dollars, credit risks and interest rate risks. The Company uses financial derivative instruments to minimize those risks. The Company maintains a formal risk management policy under the management of its executive officers, its Risk Policy Committee and its Board of Directors.

The management of those risks is performed through control policies, establishing limits, as well as other monitoring techniques, mainly mathematical models adopted for the continuous monitoring of exposures. The exclusive investment funds in which the Company and its Subsidiary Gol are quotaholders are used as means for the risk coverage contracting according to the Company's risk management policies.

Airline companies are exposed to aircraft fuel price change effects. Aircraft fuel consumption in 2006 and 2005 represented approximately 38.4% and 37.4%, respectively, of the Company's operating expenses. The Company periodically uses future contracts, swaps and oil options and its derivatives to manage those risks. Fuel hedges go towards fuel acquisition operating expenses. As the aircraft fuel is not traded on a commodities exchange, the liquidity and alternatives for contracting hedge operations of that item are limited. However, the Company has found effective commodities to hedge aircraft fuel costs, mainly crude oil. Historically, oil prices are highly related to aircraft fuel prices, which makes oil derivatives effective in compensating oil price fluctuations, in order to provide short-term protection against sudden fuel price increases. The future contracts are listed on NYMEX, swaps are contracted with first class international banks and the options can either be those listed on NYMEX or those traded with first class international banks.

The Company also engages in financial derivative instruments agreements with first-tier banks for cash management purposes. The financial derivative instruments are composed of synthetic fixed income option agreements and swaps contracts to obtain the Brazilian overnight deposit rate for investments made at fixed-rates or denominated in dollars.

The Company's derivatives contracts, on December 31, 2006 and 2005, are summarized as follows (in thousand, except when indicated):

	2006	2005
On December 31:
Fair value of financial derivative instruments at year end	R$ (4,573)	R$ 8,464
Average remaining term (months)	3	8
Hedged volume (barrels)	1,804,000	1,431,000
Year ended on December 31:
Hedge effectiveness gains (losses) recognized in aircraft fuel expense	R$ (8,665)	R$ 5,246
Hedge ineffectiveness gains (losses) recognized in other incomes	R$ (1,125)	R$ 397
Percentage of actual consumption hedged during year	77%	55%

The Company utilizes financial derivative instruments as hedges to decrease its exposure to jet fuel price increases for short-term time frames. The Company currently has a combination of purchased call options, collar structures, and fixed price swap agreements in place to hedge approximately 65% and 44% of its jet fuel requirements for the first quarter of 2007 and second quarter of 2007, respectively, at average crude equivalent prices of approximately US$ 66.80 and US$ 69.20 per barrel, respectively.

The Company classifies fuel hedge as cash flow hedge, and recognizes the changes of market fair value of effective hedges accounted in the shareholders' equity until the hedged fuel is consumed. The fuel hedge effectiveness is estimated based on correlation statistical methods or by the proportion of fuel purchase expense variations that are offset by the fair market value variation of derivatives. Effective hedge results are recorded as decrease or increase in the cost of acquisition of fuel, and the hedge results that are not effective are recognized as financial income/expenses. Ineffective hedges arise when the change in the value of derivatives is not between 80% and 125% of the hedged fuel value variation. When the aircraft fuel is consumed and the related derivative financial instrument is settled, the unrealized gains or losses recorded in shareholders' equity are recognized as aircraft fuel expenses. The Company is exposed to the risk that periodic changes will not be effective, as defined, or that the derivatives will no longer qualify for recording unrealized gains or losses in the equity. As periodic changes in the fair value of derivatives are ineffective, such ineffectiveness is recognized in the same period as the estimated fuel consumption occurs.

Ineffectiveness is inherent in hedging jet fuel with derivative positions based in other crude oil related commodities, especially given the magnitude of the current fair market value of the Company's fuel hedge derivatives and the recent volatility in the prices of refined products. The Company has determined that specific hedges will not regain effectiveness in the time period remaining until settlement. Any changes in fair value of the derivative instruments are marked to market through earnings in the period of change.

On December 31, 2006, the Company recognized approximately R$ 18 (US$ 8) of additional gains in Others gains, net, related to the ineffectiveness of its hedges. The Company also recognized approximately R$ 61 (US$ 29) related to losses within the ineffective portion of the contracted hedges for future competences. As of December 31, 2006 there was an unrealized loss of R$ 3,018 (gains of R$ 5,586 in 2005) referring to the effective portion of the contracted hedges for future competences recorded in shareholders' equity.

The fair market value of swaps is estimated by discounted cash flow methods, and the fair value of the options is estimated by the Black-Scholes model adapted to commodities options.

The foreign exchange exposure concerning amounts payable resulting from operating leases, insurances, maintenance, and the exposure to fuel price variations caused by the foreign exchange rate are managed by hedge strategies with US dollar futures contracts and US dollar options listed on BM&F (Brazilian Mercantile and Futures Exchange). The expenses accounts that are the purpose of foreign exchange rate hedge are: fuel expenses, lease, maintenance, insurance and international IT services.

Company's Management believes that the derivatives it uses are extremely correlated to the US dollar/real foreign exchange rate in order to provide short-term protection to foreign exchange rate changes. The Company classifies the US dollar hedge as cash flow hedge and recognizes the fair market value variations of highly effective hedges in the same period the estimated expenses which are the purpose of the hedge occur. The market value changes of the highly effective hedges are recorded in Financial Revenues or Expenses until the period the hedged item is recognized, then they are recognized as decrease or increase in incurred expenses. The market value changes of hedges that are not highly effective are recognized as financial revenue or expense. The US dollar hedge effectiveness is estimated by statistical correlation methods or by the proportion of expenses variation that are offset by the fair market value variation of the derivatives.

The fair market value of swaps is estimated by discounted cash flow methods; the fair value of options is estimated by the Black-Scholes method adapted to the currency options; and the futures fair value refers to the last owed or receivable adjustment already accounted and not settled yet.

The Company uses short-term financial derivative instruments. The following table summarizes the position of the foreign exchange derivative contracts (in thousands, except otherwise indicated):

	2006	2005
On December 31:

c) Credit risk of financial derivative instruments

The financial derivative instruments used by the Company are conducted with top quality credit counterparts, AA+ or better rated international banks, according to Moody's and Fitch agencies or international futures exchange or the Brazilian Mercantile and Futures Exchange (BM&F). The Company believes that the risk of not receiving the owed amount by its counterparts in the derivatives operations is not material.

d) Interest rate risk

The Company's results are affected by changes in international interest rates in US dollar due to the impact of such changes in interest expenses of operating lease agreements. On December 31, 2006, there were no open hedge contracts for the international interest rate risk.

d) Interest rate risk Continued

The Company's results are affected by changes in the interest rates in Brazil, both those applicable to deposits and liabilities in real and those applicable to US dollar indexed securities, due to the impact of such changes on the market value of financial derivative instruments conducted in Brazil, on the market value of prefixed securities in real and on the remuneration of the cash balance and financial investments. The Company uses Interbank Deposit futures of the Brazilian Mercantile and Futures Exchange (BM&F) solely to protect itself from domestic interest rate impacts on the prefixed portion of its investments. On December 31, 2005, the nominal value of Interbank Deposit futures contracts with the Brazilian Mercantile and Futures Exchange (BM&F) totaled R$ 68,500 (R$ 238,381 in 2005) with periods of up to 24 months, with a fair market value of R$ (24) (R$ (38) in 2005), corresponding to the last owed or receivable adjustment, already received and not yet settled. The total variations in market value, payments and receivables related to the DI futures are recognized as increase or decrease in financial incomes in the same period they occur.

e) Derivatives contracts applied in cash management

The Company utilizes financial derivatives instruments for cash management purposes. The Company enters into option contracts known as boxes with first tier banks and registered in the Brazilian CETIP clearing house with the objective of investing cash at pre-fixed rates. As of December 31, 2006, the total amount invested in boxes was R$ 77,350 with average term of 88 days. The Company also utilizes swaps contracts to change the remuneration of part of its short term investments to the Brazilian overnight deposit rate, the CDI. Investments in box combinations are swapped from fixed rate to a percentage of the CDI. Investments in dollar-denominated securities are swapped from dollar-based remuneration to Brazilian reais plus a percentage of CDI rate. As of December 31, 2006, the notional amount of fixed-rate swaps to CDI was R$75,000 with a fair value of R$ (256); and the notional amount of currency swaps to CDI was R$ 351,088 with a fair value or R$ 7,890. The changes in fair value of these swaps is reflected in financial income in the period of change.

18. Insurance Coverage

Management holds an insurance coverage in amounts that it deems necessary to cover possible accidents, due to the nature of its assets and the risks inherent to its activity, observing the limits established in lease agreements. On December 31, 2006 the insurance coverage, by nature, considering GOL's aircraft fleet and in relation to the maximum indemnifiable amounts, is the following:

Aeronautic Type	R$	US$
Warranty Hull	4,401,838	2,058,858
Civil Liability per occurrence/aircraft	1,603,500	750,000
Warranty Hull/War	4,401,838	2,058,858
Inventories	421,582	197,185

By means of Law 10,605, as of December 18, 2002, the Brazilian government undertook to supplement any civil liability expenses against third parties caused by acts of war or terrorist attacks, occurred in Brazil or abroad, for which GOL may be demanded, for the amounts that exceed the insurance policy limit effective on September 10, 2001, limited to the equivalent in reais to one billion US dollar.

On September 29, 2006, an aircraft performing Gol Airlines Flight 1907 from Manaus enroute to Rio with a stop in Brasilia, was involved in a mid-air collision with a aircraft of ExcelAir. The Gol aircraft, a new Boeing 737-800 Next Generation, went down in the Amazon forest and there were no survivor among the 148 passengers and six crew members. The ExcelAir aircraft, a new Embraer Legacy 135 BJ, performed an emergency landing and all of its seven occupants were unharmed. The Company continues to cooperate fully with all regulatory and investigatory agencies to determine the cause of this accident. The Company maintains insurance for the coverage of these risks and arising liabilities. The payments for the hull to the lessor were made by the insurance company. The Management does not expect any liabilities arising from the accident involving Flight 1907 to have a material adverse effect on the financial position or results of its operation.
