Diversity is a Fundamental Business Strategy

Our consumers, customers and suppliers become more and more diverse every day, so our success depends on our ability to understand diverse consumers' needs and to work effectively with customers and suppliers around the world. Diversity is the uniqueness that everyone - from suppliers to employees to corporate officers - brings to fulfill P&G's Purpose, Values and Principles.

Our Values

P&G is its people and the values by which we live. [Graphic Omitted] We attract and recruit the finest people in the world. We build our organization from within, promoting and rewarding people without regard to any difference unrelated to performance. We act on the conviction that the men and women of Procter & Gamble will always be our most important asset.

Our Mission

P&G believes a fully engaged and leveraged diverse work force is a competitive advantage. Our goal is to grow that competitive edge by fostering an inclusive culture.

Company Position

P&G touches lives and improves life all around the world. In order to live up to these goals and be "in touch" with our global markets, customers and business partners, we require a diverse work force. That's why we are proud of our long tradition of valuing, trusting and respecting diversity. We recognize the direct link between engaging the unique talents of our employees and the Company's success, both in the short and long term. Diversity, therefore, is a fundamental component of our "How to Win" business strategy for success.

Building our business for the future

P&G management strongly believes that a diverse organization will outthink, out-innovate and outperform a homogenous organization every single time. This fundamental belief is extended to the business partnerships we attract - the diversity of our suppliers.

Supplier diversity is a business strategy at P&G. In fact, our goal is to reach $1.5 billion in annual spending with minority businesses by 2005.

Recruiting One Company, Many Cultures

Diversity makes our world unique. It's our style of communication, our own special "take" on the world around us.

To us, diversity covers a broad range of personal attributes and characteristics, such as race, sex, age, cultural heritage, personal background, and sexual orientation. By sharing our unique selves, our knowledge and expertise, and by continually stretching our wings to embrace something new, something unfamiliar, we color our world and bring it to life.
