Dear MasterCard Shareholder,

Today, we issued the attached press release announcing our plans for a new governance and ownership structure. We are very excited about the proposed changes, which will broaden our ownership to include not only customer financial institutions, but also public investors and a MasterCard charitable foundation. The plans will also result in a new board with a majority of independent directors.

We believe that the proposed changes will give us a more stable base on which to implement our customer-focused strategy and bring value to our customers' businesses. We believe this is a positive development for you as both a shareholder and customer. We intend to continue to leverage our global strength and presence to the benefit of customers while remaining sensitive to regional needs.

Key Features of Proposed Changes

At the time the transaction is completed, existing customer shareholders are expected to hold 41% of MasterCard shares in the form of non-voting Class B stock. An additional 10% of MasterCard shares in the form of voting Class A stock are expected to be held by a charitable foundation that will be established to support a range of charitable activities. The trustees of this foundation will run the foundation independently of MasterCard. The rationale behind establishing a charitable foundation is two-fold: to underscore our commitment to the communities in which we operate and to create a sizeable shareholder with a vested interest in the long-term stability and success of the company.

The remaining 49% of MasterCard shares in the form of voting Class A stock are expected to be issued to the public through an initial public offering (IPO).

Voting rights will rest with public shareholders and the foundation. Customer shareholders will have approval rights (Class M stock) with respect to specified significant decisions, such as mergers, dispositions of the company's assets, a decision to leave the core payments business, any amendment to the global proxy calculation formula, or the voting rights provisions relating to Class M stock.

MasterCard intends to use proceeds from the IPO to redeem a portion of our existing shareholders' Class B shares. We will retain $650 million of the IPO proceeds to fund a capital increase, the economic impact of which will be borne by our U.S. shareholders. Along with the proposed structural changes, we believe these resources will place us in a position to defend our interests in the legal and regulatory arena. After the transaction, we will no longer have the right to impose special assessments on principal members.

MasterCard will also transition to a new governance structure. A board of directors will be elected with eight independent directors, three bank directors, one transitional non-voting director from our current board, and the CEO. We believe a majority independent board, and broader diversity in our share ownership, will address perceived conflicts of interest. We believe regulators, and others, will recognize these changes and the increased openness they bring to our governance and ownership. In addition, a European regional board will be established with specified authorities relating to MasterCard's European operations. We believe the proposed changes are consistent with and support the Single European Payment Area (SEPA) initiative in Europe. The company will also continue to receive valuable input from customers through the establishment of a global customer advisory council and regional advisory boards.

Next Steps

The issuance of our press release is the first step in a process that is strictly controlled by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). We intend to file a registration statement and a proxy statement with the SEC within the next few months. The proxy statement, which we expect to mail to all of our shareholders later this year, will describe our plans in greater detail. You will be asked to vote on the plans at a special shareholder meeting that is expected to take place at the end of this year. If our plans are approved by shareholders, we expect the transition to the new governance and ownership structure to be completed in the first quarter of 2006.

In accordance with SEC requirements, we are not permitted to comment on our plans in the media. We will, therefore, not be responding to what we expect to be significant media coverage of this announcement. Additionally, please keep in mind that although our sales force is not in a position to respond to your inquiries, you can obtain further information about our enhanced ownership structure by viewing our SEC filings. The filings can be found on MasterCard's website at www.mastercard.com under the tab "Company Info" and then under the headings "Corporate Overview" and "SEC Filings".

Next year will be the 40th anniversary of our organization. Over these years, MasterCard has evolved from a small association of member banks to a SEC-registered company with a global customer-shareholder base. The proposed changes represent the next important step in our evolution. We believe that they will enhance our competitive position and enable us to better serve our customers.

We look forward to your continued support as we embark on this new chapter in MasterCard's history.

Regards,

Baldomero Falcones
