Anglo Swiss Prepares Fall Churn Drill Program on Gemstone Properties

Anglo Swiss Resources Inc. (TSX-Venture-ASW, OTC BB ASWRF, Berlin - AMO) is a company actively engaged in the acquisition, exploration and development of gemstone and other mineral resource projects.

The Company is mainly focused on development of colored gemstone projects in the Nelson, British Columbia area, where deposits containing iolite, gem quality red garnet and star sapphire/corundum have been located. Anglo Swiss has completed initial assessments of the various lode (bedrock) occurrences on its hard rock claims. The Company also holds 13 placer (surficial material gravel) claims totalling 650 hectares near Passmore at the confluence of the Slokan and Little Slokan Rivers. These gravels derived locally by erosion of the lode mineral occurrences have been recognized as containing the various gemstone minerals now liberated from their original lode rock. Prospecting of the gravels by testing 88 sample sites by panning has confirmed the presence of both gem quality garnet and macro sapphire/corundum and suggested the quantity of contained minerals may increase with depth.

Anglo Swiss is currently planning a drill test of the gravel deposits both in terraces (benches) and on the valley floor. A total of twelve (12) large diameter churn drill holes, aggregating up to 500 meters total length have been recommended. The Company is in possession of a land use permit to allow the drilling to proceed. The object of this drilling is to test the gravels at depth, near the bedrock interface, to identify horizons that may contain significant quantities of the target gemstones. Samples obtained will be processed at the Company's lab facility located at the Kenville Mine milling plant nearby. Mr. W.G. Timmins, P.Eng. and Mr. Derek Strickland, P.Geo., both Qualified Persons as defined by National Instrument 43-101, will supervise the project on behalf of Anglo Swiss, and will act as independent outside consultants. Any gemstones recovered from this program will be assessed for their possible value by independent, qualified evaluators.

Please visit our newly launched website at www.anglo-swiss.com, presented in both English and French, where you can view some of the vast array of gemstone material collected from the properties.
