Item 8.01. Other Events.

On January 29, 2014, Google Inc., a Delaware corporation (“Google”), entered into an Acquisition Agreement (the “Acquisition Agreement”) with Lenovo Group Limited, a Hong Kong corporation (“Lenovo”). The Acquisition Agreement provides for the acquisition (the “Acquisition”) by Lenovo of Google’s Motorola Mobility mobile devices business (the “Business”), including certain related assets, intellectual property rights and contracts. Google will retain the vast majority of the Business’s patent portfolio, which will be licensed back to the Business for its continued operations.

Under the terms of the Acquisition Agreement, Lenovo will acquire the Business for total consideration of (i) $660 million in cash, subject to adjustments for working capital, deferred revenue and net debt, (ii) $750 million in ordinary shares of Lenovo (the “Lenovo Shares”) based on the Lenovo Share price at closing, with the maximum number of Lenovo Shares not to exceed 618,301,731 and the minimum number of Lenovo Shares not to be less than 505,883,235, and (iii) a $1.5 billion promissory note payable, without interest, on the third anniversary of the closing. Lenovo is required to offer to prepay the entire principal amount outstanding under the promissory note if, among other things, Lenovo becomes a wholly-owned subsidiary of another entity during the period in which any amount payable under the promissory note is outstanding. Lenovo can elect to pay some or all of the face amount of the note in cash at closing, in which event the face amount of the note will be reduced accordingly. In lieu of issuing all or any portion of Lenovo Shares at closing, Lenovo has the option to pay an amount in cash equivalent to such portion of the Lenovo Shares which would have been issued under the share consideration. Such amount will be added to the cash consideration with a corresponding decrease in the share consideration. The Lenovo Shares will be subject to transfer restrictions until the first anniversary of the closing, subject to customary exceptions. The cash consideration payable by Lenovo is expected to be funded by a combination of Lenovo’s existing cash on its balance sheet and additional bank borrowings.

The closing of the Acquisition is subject to customary closing conditions, including the absence of any material adverse effect on either Lenovo or the Business, the receipt by Lenovo of certain required consents and those consents, as of completion, remaining in full force and effect, or no longer being required, as well as clearance by the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (“CFIUS”), termination or expiration of the applicable waiting period under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976 and receipt of certain foreign antitrust approvals and clearances. The closing is subject to approval of the Hong Kong Stock Exchange of the issuance of the Lenovo Shares and certain third party consents required to be obtained by Lenovo in connection with the Acquisition Agreement. The closing is not subject to any financing condition or vote of Google’s or Lenovo’s stockholders.

The Acquisition Agreement contains customary representations, and warranties, and covenants by Google, and Lenovo, including covenants regarding the operation of the Business prior to the closing.

The Acquisition will be completed on the third business day following the first day on which there is satisfaction or waiver of all conditions precedent to the obligations of the parties to the Acquisition Agreement.
