Item 8.01 OTHER EVENTS

The information contained in AmBase Corporation's ("AmBase" or the "Company") previously filed periodic reports is incorporated by reference herein and the defined terms set forth below have the same meaning as ascribed to them in the Company's previously filed reports.

In December 2017, the United States ("U.S.") government enacted comprehensive income tax legislation commonly referred to as the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act (the "2017 Tax Act"). The 2017 Tax Act makes broad and complex changes to the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code"), including, among other changes, significant changes to the U.S. corporate tax rate and certain other changes to the Code that impact the taxation of corporations. In certain instances the 2017 Tax Act requires complex computations to be performed that generally were not previously required by the Code and the regulations promulgated thereunder; significant judgments to be made in interpreting the provisions of the 2017 Tax Act; significant estimates to be made in certain calculations; and the preparation and analysis of information generally not previously relevant or regularly produced. The U.S. Treasury Department, the Internal Revenue Service ("IRS"), and other standard-setting bodies could interpret or issue guidance on how provisions of the 2017 Tax Act will be applied or otherwise administered that differs from our interpretation. As we complete our analysis of the 2017 Tax Act, collect and prepare necessary data, and interpret any additional guidance, we may make adjustments to provisional amounts that we have recorded that may materially impact our provision for income taxes in the period in which the adjustments are made. Additionally, there is risk relating to assumptions regarding the outcome of tax matters, based in whole or in part upon consultation with outside advisors; risk relating to potential unfavorable decisions in tax proceedings; and risks regarding changes in, and/or interpretations of federal and state income tax laws.

As presented in the Company's previously filed periodic reports, the Company has approximately $21 million of Alternative Minimum Tax ("AMT") credits carried forward from prior tax years. In accordance with the 2017 Tax Act AMT credits, subject to certain reduction adjustments, can potentially be claimed by the Company as refundable on tax returns to be filed for tax years beginning in 2018. For example, for the Company's 2018 tax year up to 50% of the Company's outstanding AMT credits could potentially be claimed as refundable to the Company, with 50% of the remaining credits available to potentially be claimed as refundable in subsequent tax years, (i.e. 2019 and 2020), with any remaining credits potentially refundable in 2021. The Company, with its outside advisors, is currently reviewing the financial statement effect and financial statement recognition of the 2017 Tax Act including the amounts and timing of any AMT credit carryforward refunds. Additionally, the Company's tax advisors indicate that the IRS typically has broad discretion to examine taxpayer tax returns, even after refunds have been paid to taxpayers, which could result in adjustments to AMT credit amounts claimed as refundable and/or AMT credit amounts ultimately received.

The Company's AMT credit amount(s) projected to be claimed as refundable for each tax year are as follows:

Tax Year	Declining balance of the AMT credit amount(s) available for each tax year (a) (b)	% of AMT credit amount(s) available to be claimed as refundable for each tax year	AMT credit amount(s) projected to be claimed as refundable for each tax year (a) (b)
2018	$20,000,000	50	% $10,000,000
2019	10,000,000	50	% 5,000,000
2020	5,000,000	50	% 2,500,000
2021	2,500,000	100	% 2,500,000
			$20,000,000

(a) The declining balance of the AMT credit amount(s) available for each tax year and the AMT credit amount(s) projected to be claimed as refundable for each tax year are net of certain estimated adjustments from the previously disclosed AMT credit amounts.

(b) Assumes no regular federal income tax liability in tax years 2018, 2019, 2020 and 2021, which would reduce any AMT credit amount(s) ultimately refunded.

The Company will be filing its 2018 federal income tax return in 2019. The Company's management is continuing to work closely with outside advisors on the Company's tax matters as they relate to the 2017 Tax Act and on the various federal tax return matters for the numerous interrelated tax years. The AMT credits carried forward by the Company from prior tax years and related refund(s) could potentially be subject to IRS or other tax authority audits, including possible IRS Joint Committee review and/or approval. Neither the Company nor its outside advisors can predict whether or not the IRS and/or other tax authorities will review the Company's tax returns to be filed and/or as filed in prior years. The Company can give no assurances as to the final amount of refunds, if any, or when they might be received.

The Board of Directors and Company management will continue to work to enhance stockholder value. The Company is continuing to pursue various legal and tax recoveries; however, the legal and the tax recovery process can be lengthy and there can be no assurance that the Company will be successful in these endeavors. The Company intends to continue to carefully preserve and deploy its asset base and manage costs accordingly.

For additional information with regard to the Company's income taxes see the Company's previously filed periodic reports. The information presented herein should be read in conjunction with the Company's consolidated financial statements filed in its Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2016.

A more complete discussion of the Company's annual results and the Company's affairs will be included in AmBase Corporation's Annual Report on 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2017, which the Company expects will be filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, on or before April 2, 2018.
