Integration Status Update and New Employee FAQs
A Message from Russ Robertson and Cecily Mistarz

As integration planning continues, teams from BMO, Harris and M&I continue to work together to deliver a smooth and successful integration for our customers, employees and shareholders.

Last week, Bill Downe provided an enterprise integration update as part of BMO's Q1 financial results. Click here for a Message from Mark Furlong and Bill Downe on Q1 Results. Bill's remarks and the analyst Q&A transcript are available on BMO's Investor Relations site (www.bmo.com/IR).

Today BMO-Harris launched a page on the BMO-Harris intranet that houses all integration-related communications. At M&I, employees can find all information on the integration on MiNet, archived under the BMO/M&I Transition Information sidebar banner. We are working to provide M&I employees with access to the BMO-Harris intranet site immediately after the deal closes.

BMO, Harris and M&I have posted a new document on our respective intranet pages that captures our most recent Key Messages and FAQs.

As with any integration, work and key decisions need to follow an orderly process. We are taking the right amount of time to plan and we are being very deliberate in the choices we are making. We don't have answers to all of the questions our employees and customers have for us today because a lot of the work is still in progress. This new Key Messages/FAQ document reflects the information we have to date; however, it is a living document that will be further updated as we move forward through the integration.

We are committed to communicating key outcomes and information throughout the integration process and we look forward to providing you with updates.

It's difficult in the midst of integration planning to keep your customers at the center of everything you do, but we know that employees at both M&I and Harris are successfully doing just that. Thank you very much for your continued focus on delivering a great customer experience.

Russ Robertson

Executive vice president, Business Integration, BMO Financial Group, and vice-chair of Harris Financial Corp.

Cecily Mistarz

Executive vice president, Integration Management Office Director, Harris

- Long tradition of community banking: Strong local ties, supported by teams of bankers our customers know and trust – that is what is most important to us. How long will the systems conversion take?

Who is leading the Merger Integration team?

The Integration Leader is Russ Robertson. The Integration Director reporting to Russ is Cecily Mistarz.

Who will lead the new company?

Upon closing, Mark Furlong, who is currently Chairman, President and CEO of M&I, will become CEO of the combined U.S. Personal and Commercial banking business, based in Chicago. He will report to Bill Downe and will join BMO's Management Committee. Also, upon closing, Ellen Costello will serve as CEO of Harris Financial Corp. and U.S. Country Head for BMO with oversight for all U.S. governance. She will report to Bill Downe and will continue to serve as a member of BMO's Management Committee.

Who will be the leadership team for the new company and other lines of business?

We plan to announce the new leadership teams in the coming weeks.

Have you made any decisions about how the combined operation will be marketed and branded? What will be the name of the new combined bank?

At close, Harris and M&I will become one combined bank but will continue to use the Harris and M&I brands until systems conversion.

We've been looking carefully at how best to present our combined operations in the context of BMO Financial Group's longer term goals in the U.S. and how best to meet customer expectations. We are excited to combine the strengths of the M&I, BMO and Harris and look forward to sharing more details at an appropriate time.

What Integration Means for Employees

Employee Key Messages

- We are committed to an environment where employees are encouraged to explore their potential and contribute at their fullest. Our culture is one that rewards employees for strong performance.
- At close, the expanded expertise of our U.S. employee base will drive our ability to compete successfully in our expanded footprint. We expect that our strengthened Midwest presence will create opportunities.
- Excellence in customer experience is directly aligned with a talented, engaged workforce.
- We must view ourselves as one company, with no borders or boundaries. They're irrelevant to customers and they're irrelevant to customer opportunity. We are all part of a unified North American business.
- As with any integration, there will be job reductions. BMO has a commitment to treat all employees fairly and to communicate with them about where they stand.

Employee FAQs

Will you close any branches?

BMO/Harris and M&I operate with little geographical overlap; as a result we anticipate minimal impact on customer serving roles within the branch system in particular. As we finalize our plans, we'll communicate as appropriate.

How are you planning to consolidate non-customer facing departments?

The Integration Management team is leading a strategic process related to all the complex issues involved in integrating the companies. We will communicate key timelines throughout the integration process.

Will there be layoffs? And if so, how many will there be?

Inevitably, we do expect staff reductions. BMO has a commitment to treat all employees fairly and to communicate with them. Impacted employees will be supported through job transition policies and through HR and employee relations support.

When will I know if my job will be affected?

We currently are working through the structure and makeup of the new combined company. We will use the time leading up to our anticipated close date to undertake a thorough assessment of the needs and management structure that will work best for the new bank. We will be taking a thoughtful and measured approach to all organizational changes related to this transaction, as we do with all acquisitions.

Will the company provide outplacement services to support the needs of employees whose positions have been eliminated?

As with all mergers and acquisitions that affect employees, eligible employees whose positions are eliminated will receive severance and career transition support.

Can employees apply for job openings posted with the other company?

Until the closing of the transaction, the two companies remain separate companies. Information for M&I employees on applying for BMO Financial Group positions will be available after the transaction closes.

If my position is eliminated, will I be able to apply for other opportunities at the company?

Yes, employees whose positions are eliminated are encouraged to apply for other opportunities within the company.

Can my team and I go meet with BMO/Harris or M&I employees?

As a general rule, if your team is involved in integration planning, it's a good idea to meet with the teams from each of the banks. If you don't have specific integration planning work underway, there should not be a need to formally meet with BMO/Harris or M&I employees.

How should I handle calls from vendors with questions about doing business?

It continues to be business as usual for both companies; employees of both BMO/Harris and M&I should continue handling supplier and vendor inquiries as they have in the past.

The combined company will communicate any decisions regarding vendor relationships at the appropriate time as it works through the integration process.

Please direct any vendor inquiries that require escalation to:

BMO/Harris: Eileen Castles at Eileen.Castles@harrisbank.com or 312-461-3538

M&I: Mary Kay Merkt at Marykay.Merkt@micorp.com or 414-489-6408

Where can I find out more information regarding the acquisition? Is there a central resource?

Currently all communications related to the acquisition are posted on the Harris/M&I Transition site and on MiNet (M&I's employee intranet site).

What should Relationship Managers (RM) do when a customer of the other bank asks for a solicitation of business?

It is business as usual until the acquisition closes, so treat the situation exactly the same as if that customer were the customer of any other bank.

Can an RM solicit a potential customer with an existing relationship at the other bank?

It is business as usual until the acquisition closes. The two companies operate independently of one another, so an RM can solicit a prospect at the other bank.

How should we handle situations where both banks have relationships with a customer?

We should handle a situation where both banks have relationships with a customer in the same manner we would if it were any other bank. It is business as usual until the acquisition closes, and that is how we should operate. Confidential BMO/Harris information, such as customer names, product development and pricing, cannot be shared with M&I and vice versa. Failure to comply could adversely impact the ability to complete the transaction.

Should we proactively reach out to customers? If so, what should we say?

We should contact our customers with the same frequency that we typically contact them. If they ask us about the acquisition, we should tell them:

- Until the deal closes, it is business as usual and the two companies will continue to operate independently.
- Customers should continue to bank as they do today.
- Both banks share a strong commitment to customers and to the community. This is good news for shareholders, customers, employees and the communities we serve. Over time, customers will gain access to new products and services, as the best of each bank is made available in the combined operation.
- BMO Financial Group is already a North American leader in Commercial banking, with a reputation for being a consistent and disciplined lender throughout the business cycle. The combined bank will maintain and strengthen this proud tradition of commitment to customers in communities that both Harris and M&I have served over the years.

As a Commercial RM, what are some key points I should be sharing with my customers today, prior to close?

This acquisition is great news. Both banks have a strong commitment to customers and to the community. Customers of the combined bank will benefit from added capabilities and the increased convenience of an expanded footprint. Our U.S. presence will include approximately 700 branches – and more than 1600 branches across North America.

Harris and M&I operate with little geographic overlap, so while our geographic reach has been expanded, we anticipate few branch closures.

Customer FAQs

How will customers be affected?

Over the next several months, nothing will change; it will be business as usual for customers while we work through our integration plans leading up to deal close.

BMO/Harris and M&I set the standard for exemplary customer experience and commitment to communities, and we will build upon this reputation.

A key focus of our integration efforts will be to effect a seamless transition and to communicate regularly with our customers throughout the process. Making all customers feel welcome will be a high priority as we work together to build upon BMO/Harris' and M&I's reputations for exemplary service.

This transaction is good news for both companies' shareholders, customers, employees and communities. It will position the organization with the capital strength and scale to enhance its commitment to customers and communities. Over time, customers will gain access to new products and services, as the best of each bank is made available to the combined operation.

Also, as a North American leader in commercial banking with a reputation for being a consistent and disciplined lender throughout the business cycle, we will continue and strengthen the proud tradition of commitment to customers and community that both organizations have established over so many years.

Does anything change with my account or how I bank today?

Until the deal closes, it is business as usual and the two companies will continue to operate independently. Customers should continue to bank as they do today at our branches, over the phone or online.

Will I be notified if there are any changes to my account?

We are committed to timely, simple and straightforward communications if there are any changes to your account.

What's in it for me? Can I expect more products and services? Can I expect the same level of service? Can I expect new products to come from the combined company?

This transaction is good news for shareholders, customers, employees and the communities we serve. It will position M&I with the capital strength and scale to enhance its commitment to customers and communities. Over time, customers will gain access to new products and services, as the best of each bank is made available to the combined operation. This acquisition gives us the opportunity to leverage the greatest strengths of both organizations: our brands and reputations.

Also, as a North American leader in commercial banking with a reputation for being a consistent and disciplined lender throughout the business cycle, we will continue and strengthen the proud tradition of commitment to customers and community that both organizations have established over so many years.

Should I have any concerns about my money and investments?

BMO Financial Group is strong and well capitalized, with a long history deeply rooted in the economic success of North America.

What happens to my insurance coverage if I have deposits at insured banks that merge? How do I verify my FDIC insurance coverage?

When two or more insured banks merge, deposits from the assumed bank are separately insured from deposits at the assuming bank for at least six months after the merger. This grace period gives a depositor the opportunity to restructure his or her accounts, if necessary.

Certificates of Deposit (CDs) from the assumed bank are separately insured until the earliest maturity date after the end of the six-month grace period. CDs that mature during the six-month period and are renewed for the same term and in the same dollar amount (either with or without accrued interest) continue to be separately insured until the first maturity date after the six-month period. If a CD matures during the six-month grace period and is renewed on any other basis, it would be separately insured only until the end of the six-month grace period.

The FDIC has helpful tools to assist you in determining your FDIC insurance coverage. Please visit <http://www.fdic.gov/deposit/deposits/index.html> or call 1-877-ASK-FDIC (1-877-275-3342) or 1-800-925-4618 (hearing impaired line) for more information.
