Item 2.05 Costs Associated with Exit or Disposal Activities

On April 29, 2015, Newfield Exploration Company (the “Company”) announced plans to combine its Onshore Gulf Coast and Rocky Mountain business units into one operating region to be located in The Woodlands, Texas. The Company plans to close its Denver, Colorado office in August of 2015 and its North Houston (Greenspoint area) office on or before April of 2016. The Company is taking these steps to improve cost efficiencies in operations and improve margins in today’s lower oil price environment. The Company believes the combination of two operating regions into one will reduce future G&A costs, increase collaboration between teams and allow the operational teams to quickly transfer key technical expertise to the most active projects. The Company currently estimates that one-time costs associated with the restructuring plan will approximate $20 million.
